

Join our growing community!

Dear

Nothing gives us more satisfaction and joy than visiting with friends and colleagues around the world. We share experiences, learn, and grow. But the continuing threat of the global pandemic has changed things. Gone are the days when we could meet once a year at conferences for 2-3 days. Now we're learning to form communities online to engage on the specific topics that interest us anytime, 365 days a year, which is why we have created the TCRS HUB for like-minded seafood professionals.

Join the TCRS HUB

I'd like to personally invite you to join The Center for Responsible Seafood. Visit our website and click the "Join TCRS Hub - A Solutions Accelerator" button at the top. It's free, and it's continually adding new features like repositories of information, discussion forums, directories of suppliers, webinars, online courses, and continuing professional development certification programs.

TCRS is a non-profit organization established in 2010 to deal with the immense challenge facing humanity—to increase food production while reducing negative impacts. This requires transformational changes in global food production systems. TCRS addresses fundamental issues through knowledge sharing, applied research, and collaboration with farmers, fishermen, feed producers, processors, buyers, retailers, vendors, regulators, NGOs, academia, development banks, and foundations.

To learn more about us, check out our new explainer video!

Thank you for checking us out. We're looking forward to your impressions and suggestions,

Sincerely,
George Chamberlain
President
The Center for Responsible Seafood

Join our growing community!

Dear _____,

In an online community, a member is worth a thousand visitors. Imagine what a thousand members (or more) could mean for YOUR industry and the TCRS mission.

Membership is free, but the cost of responsible seafood not moving fast enough to meet the threats to our earth's future is very dear.

Imagine what a highly-connected community of thousands of seafood professionals and their communities could do to accelerate regenerative seafood processes and other best practices.

This is the mission of TCRS!

Invite just 1 friend from your network today and help us help each other for a healthier planet with healthier people.

You can invite colleague from here or just send them this link:

https://tcrs-hub.mn.co/share/IWAaK4Sa1Wh4Gjix?utm\_source=manual

Thank you for helping us grow together!

George Chamberlain
President
The Center for Responsible Seafood

Don Browne
Community Manager
The Center for Responsible Seafood

Join our growing community!

,

Our directory features over 3,000 suppliers

With the launch of our own seafood supplier directory, featuring over 3,000 suppliers, we hope to provide consumers and businesses a resource to help build a more connected network of responsible seafood professionals. Please visit our directory—if your company is listed, we invite you to claim and update your company profile and help us build a robust supplier network.

Find my company

Two new courses added!

The TCRS Hub has added two new courses in water quality management & environmental responsibility. We hope you have taken the time to join the TCRS Hub: A Solutions Accelerator. This platform is intended to be a central community for like-minded seafood professionals. It's free, and it's continually adding new features like repositories of information, discussion forums, directories of suppliers, webinars, online courses, and continuing professional development certification programs. We invite you to join our network of communities advancing responsible and regenerative seafood production.

Join the TCRS HUB

To learn more about us, check out our new explainer video!

